SEMESTER

RESEARCH,
WRITING
AND SUBMISSION

Student completes research and writing of the thesis. Upon completion, student submits thesis and separate abstract to the Library and the Antiochian House of Studies.

By June 1 (or Sept. 1 in the event of an extension), students are expected to:

- Complete and submit the thesis (which includes the separate abstract);
- Have a copy of the thesis printed, bound and mailed to the Library;
- Submit a PDF of the thesis and abstract to the Dean, President, Director for Master’s Theses, and Librarian.

Supervisor and Second Reader review and approve thesis (which includes the separate abstract). Supervisor assesses thesis for rating and completes “Certification” form.

By June 1 (or Sept. 1 in the event of an extension), Supervisors are expected to:

- Complete and submit the “Certification of Completion Form” to the Director for Master’s Theses.

No Master’s thesis may be accepted as complete outside of these “Instructions.”

Statement of Academic Integrity

Integrity in academic work is required of all AHOS students. Academic dishonesty is any breach of this integrity and includes such practices as cheating (the use of unauthorized material on tests and examinations), submitting the same work for different classes without permission of the instructors; using false information (including false references to secondary sources) in an assignment; using information from the internet with no reference of the source, improper or unacknowledged collaboration with other students, and plagiarism.

The Antiochian House of Studies takes seriously its responsibility to uphold academic integrity and to penalize academic dishonesty.

Generative Artificial Intelligence Tools

Students who plan to use generative Artificial Intelligence tools in researching or writing their thesis must always seek and document in writing unambiguous approval for the planned uses in advance from their supervisor.

Identifying a Supervisor and Second Reader

The student is advised to begin identifying a subject area and soliciting the support of a suitably qualified member of the faculty as a potential Supervisor no later than the end of the second academic year of their respective Master's program (namely, upon successful completion of Unit IV), whether for degrees of the Master of Theological Studies, Master of Divinity, or Master of Pastoral Care and Counseling.

All members of the AHOS faculty who hold an earned doctorate are pre-approved to be Supervisors for Master's theses. All members of the AHOS faculty are pre-approved to be Second Readers for Master's theses.

The Director for Master's Theses may approve a Supervisor and a Second Reader outside of the faculty. However, in order to be approved, any such Supervisor must be an Orthodox Christian in good canonical standing, hold an earned doctorate from an accredited institution, and hold an Orthodox theological degree or demonstrate Orthodox theological formation through their curriculum vitae.

In exceptional cases, a Supervisor within or outside the AHOS faculty may not hold an earned doctorate but demonstrate sufficient academic training and expertise in a subject area through their curriculum vitae in order to be approved.

A Second Reader outside the faculty must be an Orthodox Christian in good canonical standing and hold an Orthodox theological degree or demonstrate Orthodox theological formation and sufficient academic training and expertise through their curriculum vitae in order to be approved.

The submission for any approval of Supervisors and Second Readers shall take place through email correspondence. The names and signatures of the approved Supervisor, Second Reader, and student, as well as the identification of the subject area for the thesis shall be recorded on the "Supervisor and Second Reader Form" (Attachment 1) and submitted by the Supervisor to the Director for Master's Theses. On the form, the Director shall certify that the Supervisor and Second Reader are approved.

Formulating a Thesis Topic and Obtaining Approval

Although the informal process of identifying a thesis topic and Supervisor can begin much earlier, the formal period allotted to thesis writing is the Spring semester (Unit VI) of the third academic year. However, once an approved individual has agreed to act as a Supervisor in a specified area of research, the formal process begins.

The formal process involves the formulation of a Thesis Proposal in close consultation with one's proposed Supervisor. The Supervisor shall advise the student on the feasibility of a topic within the subject area and the suitability of the project. A written proposal would then be submitted to the Director for Master's Theses to be presented to the Faculty Council for approval no later than the last Faculty Meeting of the fifth semester (that is by November/December of that year).

In order to facilitate research and for approval earlier than the Faculty Council meeting, when requested by the Supervisor and student, the Director of the Master's Thesis Program may grant exceptional approval of thesis proposals and shall inform the Dean and President with a copy of the approved proposal.

This "exceptional approval" is granted after an evaluation of the thesis proposal and other pertinent factors support an assessment that the candidate will successfully complete the work. After such exceptional approval is granted, the Thesis Proposal shall be placed as an informational item on the next faculty agenda to keep all informed.

Structure of Thesis Proposals

The Antiochian House of Studies requires that all thesis proposals conform to the norms of The Chicago Manual of Style (Chicago: The University of Chicago Press, current edition) and its interpretation in Kate Turabian's A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations (Chicago: The University of Chicago Press, current edition) (hereafter, Turabian). All thesis topic proposals must use notes-bibliography style. In addition, The SBL Handbook of Style (Atlanta: SBL Press, current edition) may be used as a supplement for biblical studies and related disciplines. The Thesis Proposal shall consist of four parts: working title, purpose, method, and working bibliography of basic primary and most important secondary sources.

Title

The title is considered initial, working, and subject to change during the course of research with the approval of the Supervisor. The Supervisor and student must notify the Director for Master's Theses of any such change.

Purpose

Depending on the topic, the purpose section may contain a clear statement of a problem, research questions to be explored, a point of view that will be supported and argued, hypotheses that will be tested, and/or what will be accomplished. Optionally, this section can also discuss how the theological work in the thesis can be applied to the life of the Church.

Method

The method section must indicate the nature of the data, information, or themes to be discussed; the kinds of interpretive procedures to be employed; and the types of supporting evidence and arguments for the question investigated. A plan of scholarship that outlines the organization of the research must be included. This may be descriptive or even take the form of a brief outline of the proposed chapters. The methodology section must also reflect the academic tools that will be applied to complete the thesis successfully (for example, language skills, research tools, and so forth) and the scope of the research.

Bibliography

The bibliography of primary and secondary sources must include works upon which the proposal was based. Like the title, the bibliography is initial and working, and subject to change during the course of research with the approval of the Supervisor. It is not necessary to report such changes to the Director for Master's Theses. The bibliographic format must be consistent with Turabian.

Thesis Supervision

It is the responsibility of the Supervisor and student to meet for thesis supervision, once approval of the thesis proposal has been granted. There are no fixed rules regarding the frequency of such meetings and timetables, other than the completion date. Such plans and/or schedules shall be subject to the approval of the Supervisor. The Supervisor shall determine when the thesis is complete and what must be done to satisfactorily fulfill the academic standards of The Antiochian House of Studies.

Second Reader

The thesis must be reviewed by a Second Reader, who will assist the Supervisor to ensure that satisfactory academic standards are maintained and make useful suggestions. This review is usually not meant to be an in-depth consideration of the content but is intended oftentimes to address questions of format and style.

Schedule, Requirements, and Preparation of the Manuscript

The final draft should be completed and submitted no later than June 1 during the Spring semester (Unit VI) of the third academic year. An extension may be granted until September 1 of that year. The Supervisor and student must request approval of an extension from the Director for the Master's Program.

The thesis must be at least 40 pages in length, including footnotes and bibliography. The title page must follow the prescribed form (Attachment 2). A table of contents is not necessary. All sources must be correctly acknowledged. The Antiochian House of Studies requires that all Master's theses conform to the norms of The Chicago Manual of Style (Chicago: The University of Chicago Press, current edition) and its interpretation in Turabian. All thesis topic proposals must use notes-bibliography style. In addition, The SBL Handbook of Style (Atlanta: SBL Press, current edition) may be used as a supplement for biblical studies and related disciplines.

A dedication, epigraph, list of illustrations, list of tables, list of abbreviations, forward, preface, and acknowledgements may be included, but are not counted for the 40-page requirement.

In the body of the text, footnotes must be used and if exceeding 100, then they should be numbered consecutively by chapter. If translations are presented, the original text normally is presented as well in footnotes. Guidance in Turabian germane to the citation of sources on the internet in terms of evaluation for reliability and form used for citation must be followed.

Illustrative materials include photographs, charts, graphs, tables, prints, maps, reproductions, renderings, hand-drawn items, and so forth. They may be included in the body of the text or in an appendix. If included in the text, the materials must be inserted as close as possible to their first reference in the text. The explanation of the illustrative material must precede the item, and the label must follow the illustrative material. If the materials are included in an appendix, the explanation must also precede the item. These materials may include reproductions of manuscripts, original texts, and translations.

Optional end matter may include an appendix or appendices, a glossary, a list of abbreviations (which may also appear with the preliminary pages) and addenda.

The text of the manuscript must be printed with a 12-point size Times New Roman, Garamond, Palatino Linotype, or Century Schoolbook font. Underlining or italics must be used to emphasize text, but not both.

Bold typeface must not be used for emphasis. Proportional spacing and right-margin justification can be used, as long as hyphenation is used properly.

The text must appear on the paper so that the left-hand margin of the text runs along the 11-inch length of the paper and 8.5 inches represents the width of the top and bottom of the paper. Exceptions may be made for charts, graphs, drawings, and so forth. However, pages must always be paginated with 11 inches representing the length and 8.5 inches representing the width, regardless of the placement of charts, graphs, or drawings.

All margins must be one inch wide. A common error made in creating bottom and top margins is not adjusting the header and footer of the page. To do so, change the header and footer from the default of 0.5 inch to 1 inch to be sure you have the required one-inch margins both at the top and bottom of the page.

Double-space the text uniformly throughout the manuscript, with the exception of footnotes, quotations, and so forth. Refer to Turabian for proper spacing instructions.

Every page of the manuscript following the title page, with the exception of the abstract, must carry a number. Preliminary pages must be numbered in lower case Roman numerals. The text must be numbered in Arabic numerals, which continue consecutively throughout the remainder of the paper, including end matter.

All preliminary page numbers must be centered at the bottom of the page. Additionally, all end matter, that is every page after the main text, including appendices and bibliography, must be paginated at center bottom throughout.

All text page numbers can either be centered at the top of the page, or appear in the upper right-hand corner, with the exception of those pages carrying a major heading, such as the first page of a chapter, in which case the number must be centered at the bottom of the page. Even if charts, illustrative materials, and so forth, are inserted in the manuscript in landscape format, the page numbers must appear on the page and be consistent with all other pages of text in portrait format.

On rare occasions, it will not be possible to place a page number on an illustration, photograph, or other special insert. Consider that page to have the next consecutive number, continuing the sequence on the following page.

Abstract

The student must also complete a separate abstract of the thesis. The abstract must be written in English and contain no special characters, or any text written in a non-Roman alphabet. The text of the abstract must be double-spaced and must provide a concise summary of the following information: statement of the purpose, a description of the research methodology, and summary of conclusions. The abstract may not exceed a 350-word limit.

Completion of the Thesis and Criteria for Assessment

The Supervisor shall certify the completion of the thesis (which includes the separate abstract) and its assessment by completing and signing the "Certification of Thesis Completion Form" (Attachment 3). The name of the Second Reader is recorded, but the signature of the Second Reader is not required on the Certification form. The Supervisor shall submit this form by June 1 or by September 1 (in the event of an extension) to the Director for Master's Theses.

All completed theses are considered "Satisfactory," but the Supervisor may rate a thesis as "With Distinction" and recommend its future publication. Research is expected to reflect an organized, methodical, and scholarly approach. A thesis shall be assessed based on the following criteria: systematic presentation, organized research, critical consideration of sources, supporting documentation, acceptable language, and conformity to Turabian. All Master's theses must be written in English, unless a specific exception is made by the President based on a request made by the student and Supervisor.

Academic Publication of the Thesis

Master's students are required to have their completed thesis papers printed and bound using the following specific guidelines,

Size: 8-1/2" x 11" (215.9 mm x 279.4 mm)

Cover: Hardbound in Buckram (Fabric) PS 588 ROYAL BLUE, with gold lettering.

Spine: author's last name, title (truncated as necessary), year.

Front Cover: blank is fine. Some binderies include title, author, year and degree (optional).

Paper: White, Acid Free or Archival.

One-sided vs. Two-sided printing: Two-sided printing preferred but optional; saves paper and shelf space.

The bound thesis and the separate abstract must be submitted to the Antiochian Heritage Library, 140 Church Camp Trail, Bolivar, PA 15923. In addition, Master's students shall provide a final copy of their approved thesis and abstract in PDF format for publication on The Antiochian House of Studies website. The student shall submit this copy to the Director for Master's Theses, the Dean, the President, and the Librarian of the Antiochian Heritage Library (library@avcenterpa.org).

Admission

General Guidance

No student may pursue a thesis without first being admitted into the respective Master's program. The following outlines three categories of possible applicants:

New applicants who wish to pursue the Master's degree and who hold a prior bachelor's degree should select the respective Master's program application when they first apply to the Antiochian House of Studies, whether for degrees of the Master of Theological Studies, Master of Divinity, or Master of Pastoral Care and Counseling.

Current St. Stephen's Certificate students may apply to the respective Master's program by completing the "Bridge Application" by October 1 of their third semester, Unit III. This particular application is designed to be the "bridge" by which students migrate from Certificate to the respective Master's program, and normally should be received by October 1 of a student's third semester in order for the student to continue directly to the Thesis after completing their Unit V courses. However, students may contact the Director for Master's Theses for approval of a later application.

Past graduates of the St. Stephen's Certificate program may be considered for the "Thesis Writing" phase if they apply within 7 years of completing their Certificate. Graduates should contact the Director for Master's Theses to discuss timing prior to submitting a Bridge Application.
